

Measuring for Assembly

You've done the hard part and decided which ROOM products are best for you and your team. Now let's get you ready to turn your plans into reality!

If you're in need of additional information about your products, go ahead and check out our Planning Guide.

YOU'VE MADE IT! ALMOST.

Congrats! You've reviewed our guide to Measuring for Delivery and confirmed your products will make it into your office. If you haven't, you can find that information here.

Now let's make sure you have enough room for them to be put together! Compare your space to the measurements listed beneath the product type you're interested in. If you can create this open space, even temporarily, you're good to go!

*Note, if your preferred location only has 8'2" of height clearance, a Room S can be assembled with the ceiling and skylights before the walls. The unit can then be pushed into place and the walls and door added after the move. These two locations should be no more than 3' from each other.
